Appendix B - Weighting

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This report compares results from 14 Maritime universities (n = 2,123) to 28 universities (n = 9,911) outside the Maritimes. When weighted, the sample sizes are corrected to 1,873 for Maritime universities and 10,161 for non-Maritime universities.

Profile of first-year students

The demographic profile of first-year students attending Maritime universities showed that 81% were Canadian citizens, 75% were 18 or younger, 74% were single, 64% were female, 38% reported a disability, 29% self-identified as a member of a visible minority, 8% were first-generation post-secondary students, and 6% were Indigenous. These results were similar to those of students elsewhere in Canada, with the exception that students elsewhere were more likely to self-identify as a visible minority (52% versus 29%).

In addition, 67% of Maritime students were living away from their parents/family compared to 47% of students elsewhere.

Motivation for attending university

When asked for the most important reason for attending university, the most common reasons were job related, with preparing for a specific job or career (32%) selected most often. The most common non-job related reason was to apply what they learned to make a positive difference (12%). The results for students attending non-Maritime universities were very similar.

Selecting a university

Overall, 68% of students studying at a Maritime university applied to a university other than the one they are currently attending, which was lower than among students attending non-Maritime universities (79%). This may be related to why students at Maritime universities were more likely to have indicated that the university they were attending was their first choice (87% versus 77%).

The single most important factor for students at Maritime universities was their university has the program they wanted to take (27%), which was around double the proportion of the next most selected reason (wanted to live close to home at 14%). In general, results were similar to those of students studying elsewhere in Canada, with the exception that those studying elsewhere were about more than twice as likely to select the program had the work experience they wanted – 13% versus 5%; however, the difference was not statistically significant.

First-year students rated the importance of 19 sources of information they may have used when making a decision about whether or not to attend their university. Among Maritime students, the university's website (49%) was rated as important or very important by nearly half of students. Results tend to be fairly similar between Maritime students and students elsewhere, with only two differences greater than 5% (with Maritime students rating as more important in both cases) - contact with admissions staff on campus (34% versus 26%) and visit by university representative to my high school (27% versus 20%).

Orientation and registration

Fifty-nine percent of first-year students at Maritime universities participated in orientation, which was on par with results for students elsewhere in Canada (63%). Among those who participated in orientation, students at Maritime universities were most satisfied that orientation made them feel welcome at their university (89% very or somewhat satisfied) and least satisfied with orientation helping their personal and social transition (80%), with results on par with students at other universities.

Students at Maritime universities showed similar rates of satisfaction with aspects of registration as students elsewhere, including being satisfied with getting into all the courses they wanted (89% very or somewhat satisfied) and the process of registering for their courses (83%).

Expectations and experience

First-year students rated 15 experiences as to whether they exceeded, met, or fell below their expectations. Results seemed to indicate that students were more likely to be surprised about the cost-related aspects (e.g., cost of going to university and debt to complete program) and the academic challenges of university (e.g., time to put into their coursework and how academically demanding their courses are). Results were similar between students at Maritime and other Canadian universities.

When asked to summarize their overall experiences to date, first-year students at Maritime universities were more likely to say their university experiences exceeded (22%) rather than fell short (13%) of their expectations. Results were on par with other universities in Canada.

Transition to university

Students at Maritime universities reported the most success understanding the course material (94% some or very much success), finding their way around campus (94%), finding information about academic integrity (92%), choosing the program of study (92%), or meeting academic demands (92%), while they reported the least success becoming involved in campus activities (56%). This pattern was the same for students studying elsewhere in Canada.

Students studying at Maritime universities tended to have more success transitioning than students elsewhere, with the biggest gap for dealing with new living arrangements (82% versus 73%) and finding suitable housing (74% versus 65%), although differences between Maritime and non-Maritime students were not statistically significant.

Educational experiences

Students at Maritime universities rated their satisfaction with various educational experiences (all of which were similar to students' ratings from universities outside the Maritimes).

- Most students reported having had positive experiences with professors. In fact, among 15 aspects of interaction with professors, only one received less than 70% agreement – professors taking a personal interest in their academic progress (60%).
- Among those 15 aspects, Maritime students rated professors being well-organized in their teaching (43%) as the most important attribute. Least important was providing prompt feedback on academic work (6%).
- Fifty-nine percent of Maritime students said they were given the chance to evaluate the quality of teaching in all their courses, which was higher than non-Maritime students (48%), but not statistically different.
- Among first-year Maritime students, 9 in 10 agreed that they are generally satisfied with the quality of teaching they received, including 17% who strongly agreed. These results were similar to students elsewhere in Canada.

Inclusivity

First-year Maritime students indicated that they feel most comfortable being themselves while attending class (83% quite a bit or very much). They feel least comfortable actively participating in campus social activities (50% quite a bit or very much). These results were similar to students from other universities.

Commitment to completion

Several measures were used to gauge students' commitment to completing their programs at their universities, all of which were similar between Maritime and non-Maritime students.

- Perceptions of effort. Almost all students attending Maritime universities agreed that they are willing to put a lot of effort into being successful at university (96% agree or strongly agree), which is reflected in the fact that almost as many agreed that they normally go to all of their classes (92%). Although Maritime students may feel that they can put in the effort, fewer agreed that they can deal with stress (72%) or have good study habits (69%).
- Perceptions of university education. Students at Maritime universities were most likely to agree that most of their courses were interesting (86% agree or strongly agree) among four university education related aspects.
- Perceptions of finances. Maritime students were slightly more likely to agree that they have the financial resources to complete their program (72% agree or strongly agree) than a university degree is worth the cost (67%).
- Perceptions of persistence. At the time of the survey, 88% of first-year Maritime students agreed that they plan to come back to their university next year, although slightly fewer plan to complete their degree at their university (84%). About 1 in 10 plan on going to college/CEGEP next year (10%) or plan to transfer to another university next year (9%).

Overall evaluation of student experiences

When rating their experiences at university, students indicated the following:

- Around 3 in 4 first-year students at Maritime universities said they are satisfied with the concern shown by the university for them as an individual, although just 9% were very satisfied. These findings are very similar to those students attending non-Maritime universities.
- Over 9 in 10 first-year Maritime students were satisfied with their decision to attend their university, including 28% who were very satisfied.
- Overall, 32% of Maritime students are classified as promoters of their university, while 20% are detractors, resulting in a Net Promoter Score (NPS) of +12. This compares to an NPS of +2 for students attending universities elsewhere, which is significantly lower.

Goal development

The following bullets summarize information about students' goals, both for their current program and future career plans.

- Around two-thirds of first-year students at Maritime universities said they had selected their major or discipline. This compared to 82% of students attending universities outside the Maritimes, although the difference fell just above the threshold for statistical significance.
- Just over half of Maritime students (52%) plan to continue their education after their degree, either in professional program (33%) or graduate school (33%). These are slightly higher than the proportions amongst students elsewhere in Canada, but not significantly higher.
- Overall, 38% of first-year students at Maritime universities had a specific career in mind, while another 34% have several possible careers in mind. Results are similar to students elsewhere in Canada.
- First-year students at Maritime universities have taken few concrete steps to prepare for employment, as most steps involve simply gathering information from talking with parents/family (77%), friends (63%), or professors (26%).

Satisfaction with facilities and services

Among 26 facilities and services, university residences have been used more by Maritime students (46%) than non-Maritime students (27%).

Of the facilities and services used, students at Maritime universities tend to be satisfied, as only in two cases fewer than 4 in 5 students indicate they were satisfied: food services (63%) and parking (56%). Generally, students at Maritime universities show similar levels of satisfaction as students elsewhere.

Academic profile

Examining students' academic profiles shows that almost all first-year students at Maritime universities were attending full-time (98% versus 88% elsewhere) and did not transfer from another institution (95% versus 93% elsewhere). Most reported an average university grade of B- or higher (83% versus 83% elsewhere).

Current employment

Overall, 30% of first-year students at Maritime universities were currently employed, which was lower than that reported among students outside the Maritimes (37%), but this is not statistically significant. Among those who are currently employed, results show that the typical student at a Maritime university works about 13 hours per week (compared to 15 hours for non-Maritime students), and 31% said their employment has a negative impact on their academic performance.

Financing education

Students at Maritime universities are statistically less likely to have a credit card than students elsewhere in Canada, as just 32% of students at Maritime universities report having a card compared to 57% at other universities.

About 69% of first-year students attending Maritime universities said they have received a financial award from their university, which was slightly higher than students at other universities (54%), but the difference is not statistically significant. Among those who received an award, 36% of students studying at a Maritime university said they would not have been able to attend university without this financial assistance, which is on par with results among students at other universities (33%).

Equity and diversity

Among first-year Maritime students, 89% identified as either a man or woman only, while 2% identified as a man or woman and at least one other gender identity, and 3% identified as at least one identity other than man or woman.

Overall, 61% of first-year Maritime students self-identified as heterosexual/straight only, while 2% identified as heterosexual and at least one other sexuality, and 28% identified as at least one sexuality other than heterosexual/straight. It should be noted that 10% of Maritime students did not self-identify their sexuality.

Housing module

Among Maritime students, 90% indicated that their current situation was a physically safe environment and 85% indicated their current living situation was adequate; however, 26% disagreed that they were able to afford rent and utilities.

For the 2025-26 year, approximately one-third would like to live in university residences, primarily because of the convenience of living on campus (44%). About two-thirds would prefer to live off-campus, primarily because of the cost (47%).

For 2025-26, Maritime students who expect to live off campus expect to pay about $1,150 per month in rent and utilities, which is on par with non-Maritime students (~ $1,100). With that being said, about 38% of Maritime students have at least some concern about their ability to find affordable housing.

1.0 Introduction

Since 1994, the Canadian University Survey Consortium/Consortium canadien de recherche sur les étudiants universitaires (CUSC-CCREU) has coordinated surveys of students attending post-secondary institutions and facilitated sharing the survey response data among its member institutions.

Each university supported the study by generating a sample of qualifying students. In some cases, universities provided all qualifying students, while others provided a random sample of students. PRA was responsible for managing the online survey. This involved liaising with the participating universities, preparing the introductory and reminder emails to students, and responding to student questions about questionnaire content, as well as technical questions about using the online survey.

This report compares results from 14 Maritime universities (n = 2,123) to 28 universities (n = 9,911) outside the Maritimes. In order to compensate for the discrepancies between the population of first-year students among participating universities and the sample population, the results in this report have been weighted. The applied weights are shown in Appendix B.

1.1 Statistically significant differences

Large sample sizes may inflate measures of statistical significance and may lead to false conclusions about the strength of association. The chi-square measure of association in particular is susceptible to this possibility. Therefore, the standards for designating whether a relationship can be termed statistically significant have been increased: the Pearson's chi-square must have probability of a type 1 error of less than .001 and either the Phi coefficient or Cramer's V must have a value of .150 or greater. Throughout this document, any differences reported meet these criteria, unless otherwise stated.

In this report, the symbol † appearing next to the title of the graph or an element in the graph indicates a statistically significant difference between Maritime students and non-Maritime students.

| Test                          | Level for significance |
|-------------------------------|------------------------|
| Pearson's chi-square          | <.001                  |
| Phi coefficient or Cramer's V | .150 or higher         |

1.2 Non-response

Non-responses have not been included in the analysis. Therefore, throughout this report, unless explicitly stated as a subpopulation, overall results exclude those who did not respond to a particular question.

2025 Survey of First Year Students

This survey is being completed by first-year students at approximately 30 Canadian universities. We want to learn more about our new students to help them make a successful transition to university.

If you cannot finish the survey in one sitting, you can close it and return to it using the link in the email we sent you. You will be returned to the page you were on when you closed. All of your responses are confidential.
